

BIOglide® safe with carrageenan offers among other benefits protection from cervical cancer

Based on studies, BIOglide® safe was developed with a unique recipe - the added bonus of preventive protection.

How does BIOglide® protect you?

The lubricant BIOglide® safe contains carrageenan extracted from red algae, which creates a protective film that can prevent viruses from entering human cells.

The antiviral efficacy has already been demonstrated in the treatment of coughs and colds. On the vaginal mucous membrane, carrageenan can reduce the risk of infection with human papillomavirus (HPV) infections.

What are HP viruses?

Over 100 different subgroups of the virus exist. Roughly 40 types can trigger an infection of the skin and mucous membrane cells in the genital area and result in cervical cancer, for example.

Condoms are only partially effective in preventing the transmission of HPV infections.

Eroticism is a wonderful thing:

*make love
naturally!*

Your customers love „naturally“!

In love and with BIO products, the very highest standards are demanded. The 100% natural and vegan BIOglide® was specially developed to help provide vaginal lubrication in a gentle manner and to alleviate problems in the vaginal area, allowing women to enjoy a happy sex life once again.

In 2014, the BDiH* introduced the first seal of approval for medical devices satisfying the high requirements of the BIO market.

A product with the new seal „Natural Product - Standard approved by BDiH“ offers a guarantee that the product is natural. This standard now also enables product groups such as medical grade devices, medicinal products and consumer goods to demonstrate their natural quality.

BIOglide® is now the first medical device, following simple testing, to be allowed to officially bear the seal of approval of the BDiH.
